SDEAS triumphs at Panibagong Paraan competition

The School of Deaf Education and Applied Studies (SDEAS) does it again.

Its entry, "Youth Entrepreneurship Support for the Deaf," was chosen as one of the top winners at the recently concluded 2006 Panibagong Paraan competition. Panibagong Paraan is a prestigious project grant competition organized by World Bank in collaboration with local and international development partners. The project proposal will be implemented within a one-year period using PhP1 million grant from the Australian Agency for International Development (AusAID)-Philippines-Australia Community Assistance Program (PACAP). "We are truly grateful for this grant, as this will go a long way towards fulfilling our goal of improving career opportunities for the Deaf through employment and entrepreneurship," remarked SDEAS Dean Theresa Christine Benitez-dela Torre.

This victory comes at the heels of another SDEAS success: last year, a group of Deaf Benildeans won in the Youth Employment Spark Business Plan Competition, a national contest that resulted in the creation of the Deaf Benildean Multi-Purpose Cooperative (DBMC). The Deaf Coffee franchise in the College's Taft campus is DBMC's first business venture.

The "Youth Entrepreneurship Support for the Deaf" project proposal is a joint effort of SDEAS, DBMC and the Philippine Resources for Sustainable Development (PRSD). It aims to empower DLS-CSB's Deaf students and graduates to become micro-entrepreneurs, enabling them to conceptualize, plan and implement their own businesses under the cooperative set-up. Consequently, these efforts shall generate more opportunities for sustainable income and employment among Deaf people, enabling them to become job makers, and not just job seekers.

The participation of SDEAS in this year's Panibagong Paraan contest was made possible by the support of Postsecondary Education Network-International (PEN-International), a partnership of colleges and universities serving the postsecondary education needs of deaf and hard-of-hearing students worldwide.

THE SDEAS booth was a crowd-drawer because of the free Filipino Sign Language lessons and the display of works by Deaf students.

Take Filipino sign language classes at DLS-CSB

The School of Deaf Education and Applied Studies (SDEAS) offers classes under its Filipino Sign Language Learning Program (FSLLP).

Interested parties must enroll on or before June 19, 2006. FSL classes are conducted by Deaf teachers for three hours a week for a 10-week learning period. Students can choose from the following class schedules:

- Mondays and Wednesdays
- Tuesdays and Thursdays
- Wednesdays and Fridays
- Saturdays

Course fee is PhP2,400, inclusive of materials and a visual-gestural communication workshop. Discounts are available to DLS-CSB faculty and staff. For details, faculty members may call the Center for Learner-Centered Instruction and Research (CLCIR) at extension numbers 240 or 242. Staff members need to seek approval from department heads prior to enrollment.
